

Held-out species-level test sets are used only for final evaluation; ranked candidates remain hypotheses for experimental validation.